Interests

The passion I feel for gaming fuels my interest in interactive design, game mechanics, and the potential of AI to transform user experiences through advanced, adaptable environments. I keep up with the newest trends in AI advancement, eager to understand how machine learning, neural networks, and data-driven technologies are transforming industries outside of entertainment, such as automation and customized solutions. I am passionate about technology because I want to constantly be updated on the latest developments in areas such as blockchain, virtual reality, and cloud computing. These interests drive both my personal projects and my career goals to help in advancing futuristic technologies that improve everyday life.
